The Liturgy of the Hours, also known as the Divine Office, is a beautiful and ancient tradition in the Church that is not reserved for priests and religious, but can also be prayed by the lay faithful. The Second Vatican Council highly encouraged the laity to "recite the divine office, either with the priests, or among themselves, or even individually" ( Sacrosanctum Concilium , 100).

The "Ordinary" is the basic "instruction manual" for the Liturgy of the Hours and acts as a reference point if you ever get stuck. Here we see how the common phrase "Say the Black, Do the Red" comes in handy. All the words printed in the color red are your instructions and all the words printed in black are the prayers you actually pray. There are plenty of instructions and options, so read it all very carefully.

Questions about the Scriptures used during Mass Do we read from the Bible at Mass? Readings from Scripture are part of every Mass. At least two readings, one always from the Gospels, (3 on Sundays and solemnities) make up the Liturgy of the Word. In addition, a psalm or canticle is sung. These readings are typically read from a Lectionary, not a Bible, though the Lectionary is taken from the Bible.

This is an informal summary of the General Instruction on the Liturgy of the Hours. The full text can be found in most breviaries (at the start of Vol. 1 of multi-volume sets). In contrast with the Mass, the Liturgy of the Hours is relatively free in its specification of how things should be done. The texts, psalms, and prayers are the important things, and after that, many variations are allowed according to local circumstances and tradition.
